Patrick Flanigan Aims to help Non-profit and Conservation Groups in 2014

Deadwood, SD (October 18, 2013) - Xtreme Sport Shooter Patrick Flanigan has announced that in an effort to support non-profit and conservation groups, discounted rates will be offered on live performances booked in 2014. Flanigan, a well-known and seasoned shooting sports entertainer has made appearances on numerous television programs during his 500+ performances and is one of the most entertaining shooting sports shows in the world today. With 8 world records and multiple Winchester Repeating Arms and Mossberg Firearms shotguns named after him, Flanigan brings a unique experience at a new discounted price in addition to a truly memorable performance.

Flanigan has worked with many charities and non-profit organizations in the past and has vowed to continue those efforts in the future. "We have received hundreds of inquiries in the last ten years from various non-profit and conservation groups and events and it has always been my focus to accommodate these groups and now we have found a way to do just that", said Flanigan.

Patrick Flanigan and his team have developed special rate packages to allow organizations large and small to benefit from his shows. These packages include rates of up to 50% off Patrick's current show costs, a price never seen before. Flanigan is also offering donations of sporting goods equipment and gear to be used as fundraising items to help generate extra income for their events.

"I encourage all interested parties to contact us regardless of their size and budget. After 10 plus years working in the industry I have learned how to create, promote and help events realize the attendance numbers needed to raise funds for their organization and future events” Flanigan said.

Patrick Flanigan is currently booking shows for his 2014 tour and can be reached through his
